Young boys and old men like to get their faces fast in a nice piece of Pie—not the kind that mother used to make, but the kind we make every day. We make all kinds of tempting, toothsome, wholesome, appetizing Bread, Cake and Pastry, and we have yet to hear of anybody who is dissatisfied with our products. We make delicious, flaky crusts that tempt the teeth and please the most particular tastes.

A FAMOUS FARMER-EDITOR

Norman J. Coleman Says He's "Daddy" of all the Experiment Stations.

Among the many editors here last week did you notice an elderly man of slight build with grey hair and keen eyes? That was Norman J. Coleman, first United States Secretary of Agriculture and editor of Coleman's Rural World of St. Louis. Aside from his duties as editor, his chief business is raising trotting and pacing horses on his farm in St. Louis county and raising pecans on a 1000-acre plantation at Ferriday, La.

President Cleveland made him Commissioner of Agriculture in 1885. He must have made a pretty good commissioner, too, for when the office of Secretary of Agriculture was created and added to the cabinet in 1889, President Cleveland appointed him to that office. He had some ideas of his own about running the Department of Agriculture. He thought the farmers ought to be educated and taught scientific farming. President Cleveland thought so too. That is why there is a great agricultural college in Columbia, and that is the reason there are more than fifty other agricultural experiment stations in the United States.

Mr. Coleman was born at Richfield Springs, N. Y., in 1827. In 1847 he moved to Kentucky and was graduated from the Louisville Law School in 1851. He was district attorney at New Albany, Ind., the next year. He established Coleman's Rural World in St. Louis the same year and became an agricultural leader of the West. In a few years the Civil War started and he became a lieutenant-colonel in the Missouri militia. In 1865 he was a member of the Missouri legislature and a candidate for Lieutenant-Governor in 1868. He was Lieutenant-Governor from 1875 to 1877. For two years he was president of the Missouri Press Association. Since the creation of the State Board of Agriculture in 1865, he has been a member of that board. The University of Missouri conferred upon him the degree LL. D. in 1905.

Although Mr. Coleman is more than 84 years old, he does not like to be helped across streets and up steps. His eyes are good and he is exceptionally healthy and vigorous. His good health he attributes to the fact that he does not eat too much. Most of us, he says, dig our graves with our teeth. Mr. Coleman spends about two days each week on his farm.

Mr. Coleman came here for Journalism Week to attend the meeting of the past presidents of the Missouri Press Association. Thursday morning, as he walked down Hitt street, he said: "I am the daddy of all these experiment stations. I first mentioned the idea to Cleveland when I was Secretary of Agriculture."

WARRIOR IS INTERVIEWED

"Puny" Bluck, in Bed, Gives Information Between Snores.

Time: 10:25 in the morning.
Scene: A first-floor front room at the Jefferson Club with the curtains drawn. A recumbent figure on the bed asleep. Snores.

Enter intruder hesitatingly, knocking on the door as he enters.

"Is this Mr. Bluck?" He knew it was. "Uh-huh." It—the figure—lazily turns over.

"Have you finished your exams yet?" "Last Friday morning"—still with his eyes shut.

"How did you come out? Were you successful in all of them?"

"Think so."
"How soon will you know for certain?"

"'Bout ten days."
A pause while the intruder tries to think of some more questions.

"When will you go East for the physical examination if you pass the others?"

"June."
"Will you enter school then or in September?"

"Then."
"Thanks, Mr. Bluck." The intruder is coming effusive in his thanks as he makes his exit, when he is interrupted:

"Say, what time is it?"

The interviewer hastily fishes for his watch and answered: "10:25."
"Thanks." And the mighty man of battle turned over and goes peacefully back to sleep.

San Antonio
A foreign tour on American soil!

Even Continental Europe cannot show you more interesting ruins and relics of mediaeval times than are here. These splendid old Spanish missions, located within eight miles of the city, offer an incentive for the most delightful rides and drives—if any incentive were needed other than the fine roads, the beautiful scenery and the perfect weather. Come to San Antonio this winter and match your skill against some of the golf enthusiasts that make this city their winter rendezvous. Join in an exhilarating polo game—hunt, fish and follow the hounds—"get into" the dances, balls, banquets and theatre parties. Forget the hard work and the harder weather of the north and give yourself up for a while to this place of summer pleasures.

The best way to go is by the Katy

—the only line with its own rails from St. Louis or Kansas City to San Antonio; no delays—no missed connections for it is "Katy all the way". It is but a short trip of delightful comfort from either point.
